

ELEPHANT SONG

Wilbur Smith

When the ivory warehouse at Chiwewe National Park in Zimbabwe is raided by poachers, chief ranger Johnny Nzou is a prime target. Learning of Johnny's brutal murder, his old friend Daniel Armstrong sets out to hunt down those responsible. He soon finds himself pitted not only against the ruthless greed of a conspiracy of illegal ivory traders, but also against the might of BOSS, an international consortium hell-bent on plundering Africa's natural resources . . .

A magnificent epic, steeped in the beauty of the rugged continent that Wilbur Smith knows so well.

page 9

HOME GROUND

Hugh Miller

Drynfor, in north Wales, is a place that district nurse Megan Roberts would rather avoid; the small town where she grew up holds far too many painful memories. But when her old friend and mentor Mrs Pughe-Morgan appeals to her for help, she knows she must return. Megan's loyalty brings rewards, for it is back on home ground that she is to find unexpected joy in the new challenges she will face, and among the new—and very special—friends that she is to meet.

Hugh Miller's heart-warming story of a busy country practice will delight Condensed Book readers of all ages.

page 211

CRIES IN THE NIGHT

Rodney Stone

What do you do in a strange house, in a foreign country, in the middle of the night, when your children go missing? That is the nightmare facing Jim and Emma Freeling, on holiday in France. Desperate, Jim turns for help to journalist, Estelle Devereau, but she, like everyone else, is strangely evasive. At every turn, Jim meets with a wall of fear and silence, even local police inspector le Brève appears to know more than he is telling about a sinister event which took place years before . . .

A haunting, atmospheric thriller, which builds to a superbly chilling climax in its final pages.

page 301

THE DALGETY FLYER

Brian Milton

On December 2, 1987, TV presenter Brian Milton took off from London's Docklands to make an epic 13,000-mile flight to Sydney in a tiny microlight. On the way, he met with thrills and spills galore: turned upside-down on a Greek runway; suffered engine failure at 5,000 feet, and made many an emergency landing. He also encountered an amazing diversity of colourful and memorable people—always friendly.

The compelling story of Brian Milton's adventures is a treat for armchair adventurers; a true-life drama to keep you on the edge of your seat.

page 419