

PROFIT WITHOUT HONOUR

by Tom Keene

A research chemist disappears without trace; an elderly woman suffers a nearly fatal attack of high blood pressure; a fisherman collapses whilst at sea . . . When young Jenny Macrae, a speech therapist in the Scottish town of Gleninver, suspects there may be a link between these events, her inquiries lead her to Highland Pharmaceuticals Limited, a local firm about to launch a new wonder drug. Jenny finds that part of HPL's research is shrouded in secrecy. Risking all, she ventures into the very heart of the company's operations—where she makes a horrifying discovery . . .

A compelling thriller about a high-level cover-up of chilling proportions.

NO ENEMY BUT TIME

by Evelyn Anthony

Claire Fraser has come home to County Kildare because Frank, the half-brother whom she adores, is in desperate trouble. On the run. Kidnapped, possibly. Or maybe even murdered. By the very people whose cause he has embraced—the IRA. But whilst there is still a glimmer of hope for his survival, Claire is determined to find him. Alone and vulnerable, she heads for the one place she thinks he may have gone to: a special hiding place known only to the two of them, which they discovered years earlier . . .

With No Enemy but Time, Evelyn Anthony has created her most powerful and ambitious novel to date: a marvelously haunting story of loyalty, courage and betrayal.

TO KILL THE POTEMKIN

by Mark Joseph

Potemkin is the most dangerous submarine in the Soviet nuclear fleet: fast, deep-running, and so technologically advanced that her existence has been kept top secret. Until now. For while Potemkin has been quietly stalking American warships in the Mediterranean, a talented sonarman aboard a US sub has picked up her distinctive sound. And the Americans are not going to let Potemkin slip away before they have learned as much as possible about her. The chase is on—and the stage is set for a tense under-sea contest which could, at any moment, escalate into nuclear war.

This suspense-filled novel, inspired by actual events in recent submarine history, builds up to a shocking climax.

TREE OF GOLD

by Rosalind Laker

In the glittering world of the silk-makers of nineteenth-century France, the feud between Maison Roche and Maison Devaux is legendary. For generations the two families have fought bitterly for the best commissions. But in the hands of the beautiful, fiery Gabrielle Roche and the dashing Nicolas Devaux, the competition takes a new twist. Dedicated rivals in business, the two come to share a forbidden, secret love that threatens to destroy them both.

Set against the backdrop of Napoleon's turbulent reign, this rich historical drama is the latest triumph for the much-loved author of This Shining Land, a recent, very popular, Condensed Books selection.
